I was retiring to bed on the night of my return, when a summons from without called me to the door. A st nger asked shelter for himself and horse for the night.

I invited him in. Though a stranger, his face seemed not unfamilian. He was probably one of the men that I had seen at the land office, a place at that time very much frequented. Offering him a seat, I went to see his horse. The poor animal, as well

83 I could see by the dim starlight, seemed to have been hardly used. His panting sides bore witness of a merciless riding, and a tremendous shrinking at the slightest touch, betokened recent fright. On returning to the house, I found the stranger had gone. His absence excited no surprise; he would doubtless soon return. It was a little singular, however, that he should leave his watch upon the table. At the end of an hour, my present not returning, lewent again to the stable, thinking he might have found his way thither, to give his personal attention to the wants of his horse. Before going out from mere force of habit-for we were as yet unvisited

The Rev. Otis Gibson, who is in charge of the Mission, sanctified the tie with the impressive rites of his church. The atte dance of friends of the bride and groom, and of curious Americans, was large and respectable. About thirty pupils of the Mission School, who, as a rule, are free from the opium habit, were present in their native apparel, sresh of complexion, and even handsome. There were about as many Chinese ladies, whose broad sleeves, loose cotton gowns and ornamental scene picturesque. A few stray Chia-

The Mystery of the Indebtedness of the Greatest Spendthrift in Europe

London Correspondence of the Cincinna

Commercial.]

There is a general impression that under this Indian visit there lurks a scheme for putting about £100,000 at the very least into the Prince's pocket. The Prince, notwithstanding an auanal income of £120,000, cannot keep out of debt. How he manages to spend so much money is mysterious as to amount to a scandal. His residences and estates are provided for him, and are untaxed; and were he to give a linner party every day in the year to twenty princes, at twice the price per head of a Lord Mayor's banquet, a would not costs a third of his income. The report was circulated that he was burdened with expenses by the the Queen's withdrawal from Court; bu Queen has taken pains to have it reach the public that the Prince has suffered o pecuniary loss on her account. Some time ago repeated efforts were nade to feel the pulse of the country to find if it would be safe to ask the House of Commons to pay the Princes' debts without showing the vouchers. These efforts were successful; the pulse of the country was felt, and reveated plainly that it would not be safe. Efforts to raise his income were equally fruitless.

It is plain we are seperated by a considerable moral interval, however brief in time, from the days when Parliament was so generous in paying Princes of Whales debt with the pubne money. It seems like ancient history, rather than plain Parliamentary proceedings of sixty years ago, to read that when Trouthors, the Wapping tradesman, died bequeathing a large sum for schools for the poor, the Prime Minister stated to the House that he was happy to inform them that although the Prince of Wales' debt exceeded his income by a quarter of a milnon, the nation would not be called apon to pay the whole, for a tradesman

BUDDING PECAN ON HICKORY. About a year sgo I budded a pecan into a vigorous mekory sprout of the same season's growth. The bud remained dormant until the following spring, when the spront was cut back to the bud. A shoot grew from the bud last summer, which measured nearly the feet. This shoot has also thrown out several laterals, measuring from two to four feet each. Last winter I cut down a number of my hickories, some of them measuring nearly a foot through, and this summer have budded the sprouts from them with the pecan. I use annular budding i. e., a ring of bark with a bud upon it, pat in place of a similar ring removed from the stock. It is very seldom a bud fails to take, and the few failures I had were occasioned by a small gent which works between the bud and the stock, which can be prevented by the application of grafting wax .- Am.
